Regional News Round-Up

The Essex Skypark Association has met with Baltimore County officials to discuss the future of the facility. The county has owned the property since 2000, and recently announced plans to evict the airport after it failed to timely renew its lease. The county wants to use the land for environmental conservation efforts, but the airpark now hopes to raise sufficient funds to purchase the property. Ellen Kobler, a spokeswoman for the County Executive, told the Essex-Middle River Patch that: “We’re exploring a number of available options and while we are not getting in to specifics right now, there are several ways this matter can be resolved to ensure everyone is satisfied.”

The Stafford Regional Airport Authority has requested a $1.4 million loan from the county's Board of Supervisors to construct a new, permanent terminal building. The project would have a total cost of $3.7 million, with the rest of the funding coming from the Virginia Department of Aviation. Currently, a trailer is used as the terminal; a new building is expected to attract greater corporate use. The board is expected to discuss the request at its April 4 meeting. In other Stafford news, the authority hopes to obtain permits by September to start clearing trees that impede the instrument approach of Runway 33.

Barbara Hutchinson has resigned as Executive Director of the Charlottesville-Albemarle Airport Authority. Deputy Director William Pahuta will serve as acting director on an interim basis until a replacement is selected.

FAA General Aviation News

The current issue of FAA's bi-monthly publication for general aviation – “FAA Safety Briefing” – is now available from the FAA website, at http://www.faa.gov/news/safety_briefing/2012/media/MarApr2012.pdf.

The theme of the issue are issues to be discussed at its annual safety standdown at the Sun 'N Fun Fly-In (a segue to a reminder that GWBAA's standdown is scheduled in May). Articles include features on avoiding loss of control accidents and upset prevention and recovery training, as well as a reminder to pilots to be cautious of the side effects of spring allergy medicines.
