FAA Reminder Re Runway Safety at IAD

Curbing Runway Violations at IAD and Beyond

Earlier this month, a Runway Safety Action Team (RSAT) meeting was convened at Washington Dulles International Airport (IAD) which discussed the problem of runway incursions by GA aircraft. According to the FAA, on a nationwide basis 75% of runway incursions involve GA aircraft. Dulles has seen a sharp rise in business aircraft operations since 9/11, due to the restrictions on operations at Ronald Reagan Washington National Airport (DCA) - and ongoing reconstruction of taxiways at IAD has made it especially important to check means notices to airmen (NOTAMs). For more information, please visit the NBAA's summary of the meeting at <http://www.nbaa.org/ops/safety/in-flight-safety/runway/20140604-dulles-meeting-emphasizes-need-to-curb-ga-runway-violations.php>.

Congressional Hearing on NextGen's Effects for Small Businesses

On June 11, the U.S. House of Representatives' Small Business Committee held a hearing on the effects of the FAA's NextGen program - most notably, that all aircraft be equipped with an ADS-B out transponder by 2020. Witnesses testified that the cost per aircraft would be approximately $5,000, plus an additional $3-4,000 in installation costs - but would have few if any benefits for the average GA operator. For more information about the hearing and the overall issue, please visit <http://smallbusiness.house.gov/calendar/eventsingle.aspx?EventID=373176>.

Regional News Round-Up

Stafford Regional Airport has submitted recommendations to the Stafford County Planning Commission regarding how land near the airport should be developed, to ensure compatibility. The airport has expressed concern about the planned density of the "Oakenwold" development on a nearby 232-acre parcel, which at its closest point is 3300 feet from the runway. The FAA generally recommends against residential development near airports. The County Planning Commission expects to further consider the development plans at its July 9 meeting.

Cambridge-Dorchester Airport has received a $180,000 FAA grant, to study the removal of runway obstructions.

Talbot County will remove trees that the FAA has determined pose a hazard to pilots using the ILS at Easton Airport. The county plans to plant new trees elsewhere on the neighboring Mistletoe Hall property as mitigation. In other Easton news, the airport has received a $1.2 million FAA grant to complete terminal construction.

GovPartners, LLC - a GWBA member - has announced that they are now offering market research services for the transportation sector within the greater Washington area. Cynthia Karnik, GovPartners' Customer Experience Officer, stated in a news release that: "Our objective results significantly contribute to improving the way our clients do business, increases the productivity of our client's vendors, and saves our clients' money, while improving the end users overall traveling experience. On June 7, the Capitol and other government buildings were briefly evacuated after an aircraft entered restricted airspace. A recent study reports that on average, military aircraft are scrambled once per week to intercept aircraft in restricted airspace nationwide. As always, fly safely!
