VIP TFR and Airspace Restrictions Today

---

DC Pilot's Perspective

Hi all,

We have some local airspace restrictions today in the form of traffic management initiatives due in part to a VIP TFR in the DC area. Please make yourself aware of the restrictions and the required routing for general aviation aircraft arriving at KIAD. They are currently being shown as valid today between 141200Z to 142330Z. As you know, restrictions can be extended or modified so please check before filing your flight plan or departing for Dulles. The restrictions can be found at this link:

<http://www.fly.faa.gov/ratreader/jsp/index.jsp>

These restrictions require filing specific routes for GA aircraft dependent upon your point of origin. FYI, the affected departure points include much of the eastern seaboard and into Cleveland center airspace also. I won't print them here simply because they can and may change dynamically throughout the day. The link above is updated regularly and represents the most current programs and routings in effect.

Fly safe and best of luck for smooth sailing in and around DC today.
